The orchestration of ALLELUIA is complete in seven books as follows:

First Violin	Clarinet
Second Violin	1st & 2d Cornets (one book)
Cello	Trombone
Bass

The arranger has so disposed of the brass section that complete harmony results from the use of the two cornets and trombone. But while he has provided brass parts for practically every hymn in the book it does not follow that their use is always effective. It is intended that the orchestra leader shall use discretion in the employment of these instruments so as to secure the best results.

There is hardly a town or village in the country that does not have a band. Such an organization can always be called upon to provide players of wind instruments to the lasting benefit of both the band and the Sabbath School, for the reason that the more practice provided for the player the more proficient he becomes. Likewise it is possible to secure players of the stringed instruments from the public school orchestras, of which there is an increasing number throughout the country.

It is always best to have more strings than wind instruments because of the greater balancing power of the latter. If there are plenty of players to choose from a good balance will be obtained from the use of four first violins, four second violins, two cellos and two basses in the string section, and one clarinet, two cornets and one trombone in the wind section. It cannot be strongly urged that the brass section be kept subdued. If played too loud the immature voices are sure to become strained in the effort to keep up with the power of the instruments.

It must always be remembered that in this case the orchestra is supposed to be playing an accompaniment and not a concert number. The hymn is of the greatest importance in the ensemble and the instruments are to provide a proper support for the voices. Whenever the instruments become the main structure and the voices are relegated to mere supporting parts the entire purpose of the rendition is lost.

The plan of the orchestration is as follows:

1. FIRST VIOLIN. The melody has been written in octaves in order that both experienced and inexperienced players may be utilized. The former by playing the upper notes will add brilliancy to the general effect; the latter, by playing the lower notes, will find them all in the first position and correspondingly easy of execution. It is desirable that both parts be played. The upper part may be played by a flute with good effect. The lower part may also be played by mandolin, oboe, Clarinet, C cornet or C melody saxophone.

2. SECOND VIOLIN. This part is entirely in the first position and while double stops have been freely used it does not follow that inexperienced players need attempt to play both parts. Proficient players will play as written; the less experienced will play divisi. Where instructed to play divisi it will be found to be impractical to play otherwise. This may also be played by second mandolin or banjo.

3. CELLO. A "free lance" among the strings, playing either tenor, counter-melody, melodic figure, or variation as the one or the other, may prove the most effective. A player of some skill is required to play this part. Those who can not master the part should use the book written for the string bass.

4. BASS. This part closely follows the vocal bass part but sounds an octave lower than the printed notes. For this reason it is entirely effective to have a cello also on this part if one can be spared from the real cello part.

5. CLARINET. For this part two instruments are essential—one in B flat and one in A. Otherwise a great deal of transposition will be necessary. The arranger has purposely kept this part simple by resorting to counter-melody rather than the variations or accompaniment figures which are more effective in concert music. The effort has been to keep the entire orchestration as dignified and simple as possible and not to forget the fact that these arrangements are accompaniments. A second clarinet may play the second cornet part without transposition. A C clarinet should play the lower notes of the first violin part.

6. 1st & 2d CORNETS. These parts are printed on the same staff the former playing the melody and the latter playing harmony. There is an A crook for practically every B flat cornet and its employment is indicated where necessary. A C cornet should play the lower notes of the first violin part. All brass instruments should be kept subdued to avoid causing a strain of immature voices and to better balance the general ensemble of the orchestra. If there is no second cornet an extra clarinet player may be assigned to the part.

7. TROMBONE. While this part ordinarily follows the vocal bass it sometimes plays tenor parts to better complete the harmonic structure of the brass section. Keep the part well subdued as it is a powerful instrument. Strive for a full round tone rather than the "brassy blare" so often heard. There is real dignity in a pure trombone tone.

The last two notes of each hymn, whether in the same or in separate measures, are the "AMEN" and are to be played but once—at the end of the hymn.
